A special to the New York World, (Dem.) from Springfield, Ilis., under date of October 13, says:

William Sengings Bryan's views His father was Silas L. Bryan, a lawyer and Jurist of some eminence in his day. Were he alive now, if guided by no unicertain la nyruage a few years before his death, he would be found sup porting McKirdey, and doing all he could to accomplish the defeat of his

At Louisville, Ills., on October 3, 1868, he made a notable speech. It was published in full in the Illinois State Reg-1ster of October 20, and fills nearly a page of that paper.

Silas L. Bryan was then judge of the Twelfth Judicial circuit. He was a Democrat of unswerving loyalty and unusual prominence, and great import-ance was attached to his utterances.

Judge Bryan, in his speech, touched upon all the questions then before the contrib. Evidently he did not share the content Evidently he did not share the content for the fadledary now entertained by his son. "We must respect the courts and observe their decrees and judgments," said he; and he accused, the "radicals" of lack of proper respect for the courts.

He devoted special attention to the money question. He was opposed, as Democrats in general then were, on grounds which do not now exist, to the Mational banking system, then in its jidancy; but he made a strong plea for he mest money.

"Again," said he, "our platform announces the good old doctrine of one kind of money for all the people. It sown is like returning to the ancient faith of hard money."

The elder Bryan was not in favor of repudication to any extent, or under any disguise. "It is gratifying," said he, "that is the parties declare in favor of an honest payment of all our just debts.

an honest payment of all our just The apostolic doctrine," he declared at another point in his speech, "is owe no man anything, and the Den cratic decritic is akin to it-pay wi cratic doctrine is akin to it—pay what yon owe?

He argued against the inflation of the currency and, while acknowledging the supposed necessity therefor, deprecated the voluminous issue of greenbacks by the government.

"The Democracy," said he, "have not been friendly to a resort to the issue of treasury notes, and for two reasons; First, there was danger of running into a purely paper, and depreclated circulation, just where we are to-day; secondly, because there was great danger of abusing the power, We think now that if the government had depended upon ly, because there was great danger of abusing the power. We think now that if the government had depended upon our credit and borrowed money, we would not to-dry owe half what the debt foots up against us."
Evidently he did not believe, as his son does, in the issue of money in unlimited quantitier, for he lamented "the facility with which money could be manufactured by the acre."
To this state of affairs he attributed "a large part of the swindles, frauds and robberies arainst the government during the war," and said that it had had "a demoralizing influence upon the people."

during the war." and said that it had had "a demoralizing influence upon the people."

The senior Bryam, unlike his son, appears not to have been the uncompromising enemy of gold. On the other hand, he seemed to think gold a pretty good thing to have in the country. He expressed some regret that the war had not been carried on on a hard money basis. He declared that if the government had borrowed what money it needed "we would have our share of the preclous merials of the world here umong us, and would have some gold in the country to pay both principal and interest of our debt."

Discussing the plans for raising money to prosecute the war, he said; "If the government had simply issued treasury notes to a reasonable amount and borrowed no money the notes would have been convertible into gold at pleasure, but lowing to the amounts now issued they will be greatly depreciated. When we raised a dollar in gold we could pay several dollars in treasury notes, and when we paid a dollar that would be the end of it."

How to pay the strucendous national debt was then a serious problem. Many persons advocated the virtual reputaintion of a large part of the nation's obligations, but Silas L. Bryan, though saying mean things about the bonds hadders and thereby voicing the popular prejudice against thom, wanted the bonds paid off "in the same kind of money they were bought with."

"Let us deal honestly with of other kind of money properly so-called."

and when pakl, paid in speck; there is no other kind of money properly so-called."

Judge Bryan made no reference whatever to sliver. He did not use the word anywhere in his speech. He appears to have been unaware that there was any sliver in the county to be struck down by a "legislative crime."

He said nothing about "bimetallism."

Indeed, he seems to have fully understood that a bimetallic standard had never had any practical existence in the United States.

According to Candidate Bryan, the gold standard was unknown in this country prior to the "crime of "a."

Bryan the elder was better posted. He knew that before the war the country had been on a gold basis and he longed to get back to it, apparently regarding it as decidedly "a good thing."

He declared no "war of extermination" upon gold on the other hand he wanted to "get back," not to a "bimetallic standard." but "to the gold standard of value."

At the time he spoke the country had been seven years on a depreciated paper basis. This is his language: "We know and teach that the bone and muscle of the nation must pay the national debt. We know that in the end we have to come back to the gold standard of value, and we know how injortant it is that our treasury notes may be equivalent to gold, and we think we know how to attain that ond."

BRYAN AND THE BIBLE.

Overlooks the Fundamental Doctrine of the New Testament.

T. R. Howlett in Philadelphia Press: Mr. Bryan, before he turns preacher, Mr. Bryan, before he turns preacher, should read more carefully his Bible. If he did so, he would not make himself so ridiculous in his expositions of scripture. He puts the words of Agur, the son of Jakeh, in the mouth of Solomon, the son of David, and then tells those whom he calls "the common people" what a wise man he has to back him up, Ho reninds us of an old woman, who, in speaking in meetings, used to quote from Mother Goose and vulgar proverbs, and say, "as the Bible says." She was admonished that she should be more careful to use scripture when she claimed to. She replied: "Well, any way, there is one passage that is a great comfort to me, and that is that every tip stands on its own bottom." Fortunately, "the common people," as Mr. Bryan calls them, are too well acquainted wills the scriptures to be misled by his trreverent use of them. The money of the scriptures to he misled by his trreverent use of them. The money of the scriptures was not did money, which he talks so much about, but "current money with the merchants. That is the kind that workinginen in this country want for their wayes, and the kind they intend to have, as is shown by the farmers of Vermont, in the late election.

Read your Bible with reverence and oare, Brother Bryan, and learn from it to "owe no many anything, but love." Love worketh no ill to his melghbor, It don't so round making incendiary speeches and inciting peace-loving cities a gainst each other, because some happen to be rich while others are poor. In God's country, as well as in God's house, "the rich and the poor meet together," The best state of society is that in which three, parties dwell together, and deal justly and righteously with each other. To we, direct together, and deal justly and direct together." should read more carefully lels Bible. If

ciety is that in which these parties dwell together, and deal justly and righteously with each other. To promote such a state of affairs is the business of the true statesman. A beautiful example of this is seen in the speeches that come from the lips of the candidate who stays at home and addresses the crowds that press upon him in his own house from all parts of the country. The man whom the people run after, and not the man who runs after the people, is the one that is needed in the white house at Washington, and the one who will get there. is that in which these

How many Mother Hubbard's cup-boards are there in this land to-day, in every town, city and hamlet? They are found by the score and hundred, and what is the cause? Is it because the people are lazy and thriftless and dan't want to work? or are they sick and not able to perform manual labor, or why are so many employers empty?

and not able to perform manual labor, or why are so many eupboards empty? There certainly is a cause. Is it because the manufacturers do not want to start their mills, or because they can't?

The cause is found in the Democratic free trade. Wilson bill that allows the products of foreign countries to be shipped here at the expense of American labor. That is the cause of pale cheeks, cagged clothes, and shoeless feet. American workingmen stand on the docks at New York and see English goods that they could make, unloaded from British ships, ils it any wonder that Mother

New York and see English goods that they could make, unloaded from British ships. Is it any wonder that Mother Hubbard stalks bony and haggard through the highways and byways of this fair land gazing as pallid want and dire distress? Is it any wonder that the mothers and sisters and wives of the labor of America are chasting the direct of 'hard times come again no apore?"

But while the direct is being sung, there is a beautiful laughing light about to break from the American furnace that will form a hallo around the brow of American labor, where the free trade crown of thorns has restel for four years, and peace and joy will walk arm and arm down the green lanes of prosperity; the rose will blush again on the sallow cheek, love will nestic where gaint want slood, the craftle be rocked by the hand of love and little feet be warmed by heat from protected coal.

a result of the short corn crop in Mexico and the removal of the duty, there has been a heavy movement of that cereal to that country. It is estimated that for the two months of August and September nearly as much cora has gone into Mexico as during the whole year ending June 30. The corn is being sibpped principally from gulf ports and the greater portion of it from Mobile, owing to the low rairoad rates to that port and smaller wharfage charges than at New Orleans. Corn sells in Mexico at $250 a bushel in a result of the short corn crop in Mex-Mexico at $250 a bushel in Mexican silver.

Chappell, of Alton, says: Passenger and freight business shows a marked improvement over two weeks ago.

Vice President Morton, of Atchison, says his company is now beating its own record handling cattle, and doing better than any road in the country. The corn movement is taxing the full capacity of the roads.

Vice President Truesdell, of Rock Island, says: It is really supprising, this improved business. The darkest hour is before the dawn. Passenger and freight business is coming up with a bound. We could ship more corn if we had the rolling stock. The cattle movement is large and we expect an increased movement of hogs on better prices.

Gone to "See" Watson. CHICAGO, Oct. 15 .- Senator Marion Butler, chairman of the Populist nation-Butler, chairman of the Populist national committee, and George P. Washburn, who has charge of the western branch, departed for Georgia last night to confer with Thomas E. Watson, regarding the action taken by the Populist executive committee, at its meeting yesterday. A conference was held with Chairman Jones, at which it is said the probable action of Mr. Watson was considered, and the visit of Mr. Butler and Washburn finally decided upon, To-day the Populist politicians say, however, that the visit is largely a formal one, as an agreement between Mr. Watson and the Democratic managers were perfected by Mr. Washburn.

Avoid An Early Grave.

How often do we hear, that the avenue to an early grave was opened by neglecting a slight cough and cold. Profit by this truth, and provide yourself with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, which instantly cures all throat and lung affections. Mr. W. H. Mahoney, Lowell, Mass., writes: "I was taken sick with a bad cold. The doctors did not seem to help me, and everybody said I was getting consumption, when a relative recommended Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. I got a bottle and it helped me, and after taking two bottles I was cured, to the surprise of everybody. I shall always recommend it to my friends, as I know it to be a sure cure." Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is sold everywhere for 25 cents. Don't accept a substitute.

Dayton and Mason at Purgettsville-A Splendid Meeting Held.

PURGETTSVILLE, Hampshire county, W. Va., Oct. 13,-The cause of Republicanism and sound money is not publicanism and sound money is not suffering in this portion of old Hampshire county. Never in the history of the county has there been more interest taken than is being taken this year, and the issues which mean so much to the welfare of the country are being carefully studied by the people. A large number of old time Democrats, who believed in an honest dollar and in sustaining the honor of the nation, will vote against Bryan and the herestes which he represents.

To-day the biggest Republican and sound money rally of the campaign was held here. It was a success far beyond the expectations of the most enthusiastic supporters of the cause of the great leader of the Republican hosts. Congressman A. G. Dayton and Hon. John W. Mason, of Fairmont, were the speakers, and they were listened to by a crowd of several hundred citizens. This is only a mountain village, but the crowd would have been creatileable to a crowd of several hundred citizens. This is only a mountain village, but the crowd would have been creditable to a more thickly populated district, many of those present coming for miles to the meeting. Mr. Dayton and Mr. Mason both made excellent speeches, covering all the issues of the day and explaining the money question in a plain and convincing manner. No more effective speeches have been heard here for many a day and the people are anxious to have both gentlemen return.

DENVER Colo., Oct. 15.—According to the latest addices from Meeker, Col., which is ninety miles from the nearest telegraph office, the three men who were killed there after robbing the bank, have not been identified. The one who lived two hours after being shot, gave names which are believed to be fictilious. It is believed to be fictilious. It is believed that one of the robbers is Thomas McCarthy, who aided in robbing the banks at Teliuride and Delta. Those killed and wounded in the battle between the citizens and robbers are:

Izens and robbers are:

Dead: Charles Jones, leader of the bandits, aged forty-five, shot through the lungs and chest.

William Smith, aged twenty-one-riddled through the lungs and chest, shot through the lungs and chest, shot through the lungs and chest, shot through the lungs and chest, controlled the lungs and chest.

The wounded are: W. H. Clark, bullet in right breast; not fatal; Victor Dikeman, shot through the arm. C. A. Booth, scalp wound. W. P. Herrick, imser shot off.

The robbery was one of the most daring ever perpetrated in the west, occurring as it did, in broad daylight, and at a time when there were twenty or more people in plain sight. George Rooney, clerk of the Meeker hotel, had stepped into the bank, which is facated in the general mercantile store of J. W. Hagus, to make a deposit, and stood talking to Assistant Cashier David Smith. As he turned to leave be felt a heavy hand on his shoulder, and glaneling up was looking into the muzle of a revolver. The man with the revolver commanded "Hands up!" At the same instant two shots rang out and two bullets whizzed by the head of the assistant cashier, David Smith, who threw up his hands. In the meantime the two other robbers had covered the crowd in the store, compelling them to assemble in the centre of the room and guarding both doorways.

Then Cashier Moulton was called and one of the men said to him: "Open the safe, and be quick about 1."

At the point of the gun he was conducted to the safe, which he opened and the contents of the drawer, 5700, were empted into a sack the objects had brought with them. Not a word was astounding under the circumstances. After getting the money in the fire arms in the place, helped themselves to cartridges, and then the leader addressed the crowd, bank officials, employes of the store and customers who happened to be in the place, saying their horses were standing hitched outside the rear door, which epens on a side street, and that for their own sake they would request all to go outside with them. The crowd f place was surrounded until all were out. The crowd that they had driven from the store broke and ran for cover. The citizens of the town lad been warned by the two shots fired in the store and, arming themselves to the teeth, surrounded the bank and quletly awaited the appearance of the robbers. Deputy Game Warden W. H. Clark, noticed that three horses were fastened at the rear door, and surmising that the robbers would leave by that route, took up his station a short distance from the back door and centered more men at this place than any other, not neglecting, however, to keen the front door just as well watched. When the robbers keen that they were cornered, Charles Jones raiged a rifle she had taken from the store, and fired at Clark. The bandits were commanded to hold up their hands, but answered with a fusilate of shorts from a dozen different directions. Jones and Smith fell to the ground, literally riddled with bullots. They had been killed in the act of firing. Harris mortally wounded, held his revolver and still staggering, continued the battle until he fell.

Caring Dyspepsia.

The Rev. F. I. Bell, a highly esteemed minister residing in Weedsport, Cayuga Co. N. Y., in a recent letter—writes as follows: There has never been anything that I have taken that has relieved the Dyspepsia from which I have suffered for ten years except the new remedy called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Since taking them I have no distress at all after eating and again after long years can sleep well. Rev. F. I. Bell, Weedsport, N. Y., formerly Idalia, Colo.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a remarkable remedy, not only because it is a certain cure for all forms of indigestion, but because it seems to act as thoroughly in old chronic cases of Dyspepsia.

tion, but because it seems to act as thoroughly in old chronic cases of Dyspepsla as well as in mild attacks of digestion or billouaness. A person has dyspepela slimply because the stomach is overworked, all it wants is a harmless, vegetable remedy to digest the food and thus give it the much needed rest.

This is the secret of the success of this peculiar remedy. No matter how weak or how much disordered the digestion may be, Stuart's Dyspepsit Tablets will digest the food whether the stomach works or not. New life and energy is given not only to the stomach but to every organ and nerve in the body. A trial of this splendid medicine will convince the most skeptical that Dyspepsia and all stomach troubles can be cured. The tablets are prepared by the Stuart Chemical Co., of Marshall, Mich, but so popular has the remedy become that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can now be obtained at any drug store at 50 centa per package.
